1.	New Version of a Course	Political Science 3319 - Comparative Public Policy
----	-------------------------	--

Justification

To allow all students specially from social sciences and humanities to enrol in the course. There are students in other disciplines who are interested on the specific issues of both Canadian and international politics but have never taken any political science courses. The withdrawal of restriction will allow those students to register in a specific course for which taking any course in political science is not necessarily necessary.

12.	New Version of a Course	Political Science 3331 - Law and Politics: Special Topics

Justification

To allow all students specially from social sciences and humanities to enrol in the course. There are students in other disciplines who are interested on the specific issues of both Canadian and international politics but have never taken any political science courses. The withdrawal of restriction will allow those students to register in a specific course for which taking any course in political science is not necessarily necessary.
