Zone 2: Required Information – Detailed

Proposed Version

Course Description: A comprehensive introduction to the study of human behaviour in organizational settings. The course emphasizes a multi-level perspective considering the roles of individuals and groups within organizations and the complex factors affecting behaviour are considered.

REC ✓

Rationale for this proposal: The addition of this half course equivalent to second year is part of the proposed program changes to shift core business course content to the earlier year of the program. Previously this course content was introduced in the half-course equivalent Business 3318 Introduction to Organization Behaviour which has been deleted from the third year of the program.
