COURSE DESCRIPTION

Cross-cultural and diachronic consideration of art and art-making in human societies. The arts of hunter-gatherers, simple farmers, and complex societies – today and in the past – are examined in comparative perspective. The ethnography and archaeology of visual arts, music, dance, and body art are brought to bear on the question: is art a human universal? Prerequisite(s): Anthropology 1032 and 1034, or permission of the instructor and Chair of the Department.

SUPPLEMENTARY COURSE DESCRIPTION

Chi-Wara mask, Bambara culture, Mali.

Most societies do not have a special word for what we call art. Rather, art is an integral part of life and artistic activities are always in some measure cultural. They involve shared patterns of behavior, belief and sentiment, and so over time and across space we see variations in societies’ characteristic kinds of art. In this course we will examine the contexts in which artistic activity began and developed. We will also inquire into the place that art and art-making occupies in contemporary societies. Topics thus range from the art of the Ice Ages to that of the present. This course will combine seminar and lecture formats to consider ethnological and archaeological perspectives on art.
COURSE OUTCOMES

By the end of this course you will be able to:

- Articulate core concepts in the anthropology of art.
- Articulate an understanding of the role of art and art-making in prehistoric societies and modern cultures
- Analyze regional and cultural diversity in the social and cultural roles of art and art-making.
- Integrate archaeological and ethnological perspectives on human behavior, social organization, and art.

Participation:
Learning demands your active participation – it is not something that lends itself to osmosis. In this course, most learning will take place as we discuss topics initially presented in readings and/or lectures. Consequently, you are expected not only to show up for classes but also to be engaged with the subject matter, beginning by being familiar with that material from the outset. Aspects that will be considered for the participation mark include how often you show up, how often you speak up, and how often your contribution(s) advance(s) the conversation. It is expected that students who have been assigned to write a summary of a particular week’s readings (see below) will also help guide the ensuing class discussion. This aspect of participation will be worth 5% of your grade. Participation at other times will be worth 5%.

Written work:
(1) In order to help you become familiar with the topics to be discussed you will write occasional summaries of all or part of the week’s readings before the first class of that week. Altogether, you will write five short pieces critically summarizing readings on specific topics. These summary/critiques are to be no longer than 2500 words, and must be uploaded to D2L before the first class of the week to which the readings pertain. For a successful, informed discussion, it is important that these critiques be written before the discussion begins. Consequently, any late submission will be subject to a 50% deduction.

(2) Free choice short essay (10 pages max). Select two works of art, or two traditions of art production, from two different times and/or places. Discuss these works (or traditions) in terms of at least one of the concepts addressed by the readings in this course. Due November 22, 2016.

Final Examination:
There will be a comprehensive, essay-format take-home examination during the regular December exam period.
