Lakehead University acknowledges the history that many nations hold in the areas around our campuses, and is committed to a relationship with First Nations, Métis, and Inuit peoples based on the principles of mutual trust, respect, reciprocity, and collaboration in the spirit of reconciliation.

Course Description and Objectives:

The understanding and explanation of cultural diversity worldwide is the focus of study of sociocultural anthropologists. The meaning and purposes underlying the study of different cultures have changed considerably since the origins of the discipline from the end of the 19th century until the current days. Economic interests, political agendas, ethics and intellectual commitments have informed distinct views of the so-called “object” of study in anthropology, “the Other” and how it should be approached and described. This course is intended to present the core concepts that inform anthropological thought and research from the early moments of the discipline until the present. The progress of the readings and discussions is organized in two units: 1) Key concepts discussed in the light of classical schools and some contemporary examples; 2) Recent and controversial debates, including periods of transition, internal crisis and moments of theoretical and practical significance regarding the essential relationship between anthropology and cultural diversity. The successful students are expected at the end of the course to be able to:

- a) Examine some of the broader questions underlying the main theories, concepts and intellectual debates;
- b) Understand how anthropologists elaborate research questions and approach their data;
- c) Be familiar with scientific papers and their structural organization;
- d) Develop, at least from the introductory level, the capacity to critically look and think anthropologically about social phenomena;
- e) Enhance their abilities to critically think, read, propose research questions and write in ways appropriate to the discipline.

The course is organized around lectures and class discussions. We will go through some of the conceptual ideas about a particular topic in the initial sessions of each week, and then broader discussions will be proposed to expand such concepts or theoretical debates in the second session. Discussions will form an essential part of the learning process and will revolve around current and controversial issues in anthropology. Student attendance and participation are essential.

These are some of the debates and concepts that will be addressed during the course:

- Ethnocentrism and cultural relativism
- Is Language the essence of culture?
- Are humans worlds culturally constructed?
- What is myth?
- Qualitative and quantitative research
- Universalism vs. Particularism
- Individual and society: where is the agency?
- Limitations of the comparative method
- Anthropology as science or literature?
- Alterity and the self
- Ethnography and theory
- Ethnographic authority and post-modernism
- Human rights and anthropological relativism

Course Readings:

A number of articles and book chapters are required readings and are listed below for each week. All are available electronically at the course website.

Course Requirements and Grading:

Graded assignments include the following:

Class Participation
10% of course grade

Quizzes
30% of course grade

Mid-Term Exam
20% of course grade

Film Review
10% of course grade

Final Take-Home Exam
30% of course grade

Class Participation: Attendance is mandatory. Reading (sometimes a lot) and attendance are critical to achieving a satisfactory grade and learning objectives in this course. Students are required to critically read all assigned materials prior to class and participate actively (in their own way) in class discussions and assignments. Attendance will be verified using the registration features of Zoom platform.

Quizzes: Throughout the semester, students are expected to answer four quizzes that will cover the content of the reading material and class discussions. The quizzes will be applied using the D2L and will take place during the live classes. It is important that students be up-to-date with the reading material and available on the days the quizzes are applied. Students are allowed to miss one quiz without a penalty.

Mid-Term Exam: In order to verify the comprehension of the course material, students will be given a number of questions to respond.

Film Review: In the final week of class, students will watch films and write a guided critical review using the course material for support. More details will be provided for this assignment.

Final Take-Home Exam – In the final weeks of class, students will be given a take-home exam covering the material discussed during the course. Typically, the exams will contain a number of questions, normally short essay questions.

Requirements for Internet Access

Since this course will be delivered remotely, students are required to have a reliable Internet connection. We will be meeting for the class using the Zoom platform, which means each student will need to have access to a webcam (optional) and a microphone. The link to each live session is posted on the D2L website. It is recommended that each student find a place where they can participate in class free of distractions in order to follow the lectures and engage actively in classroom discussions. We will make sure everyone is familiar with the basic use of Zoom for class discussions and lectures during the first class. I suggest that you keep your microphone off during the whole class. Turn on your microphone only when you have the intention to speak and contribute to class discussions.

Class Format

Considering the limitations posed by Covid-19 to face-to-face interactions, professors and students are learning and adapting to the new normal of a classroom environment. You should expect some adjustments on the go, but you can be sure that this course has been designed to meet the high standards of Lakehead University and to facilitate equal learning opportunities for local students and international students who are taking this course from a different time zone.

The first class of the week (initially scheduled for Monday at 4 pm) will be pre-recorded and posted online, covering all the content of that week's readings. You can watch it at your own time and pace for this class, but I recommend that you reserve a fixed time slot not to compromise your study routine.

The second class of the week (scheduled for Wednesday at 4 pm) will be live and exclusively dedicated to debating the essential concepts and expanding on main issues regarding the reading material. Important: The live classes will not be recorded.

Policies and Procedures:

Grading Policy:

Assignments will be evaluated primarily based on a student's understanding of the material presented in the course. Other factors that figure in the evaluation of assignments include creative and critical insight and writing (clarity, coherence, and organization).

General Course Policies:

1. Avoid disrupting class by joining in late or allowing background noise to disturb the dynamics of the class. Disruptions will result first in a warning and then in a 5% penalty to the student's final grade. If the student's behaviour is disturbing the learning environment of the class he/she will be asked to leave.
2. It is expected that students will be respectful of their fellow students, their instructor, and cultures and traditions which are not their own.
3. Plagiarism consists of passing off as one's own the ideas, words, writings, etc., that belong to someone else. In accordance with this definition, you are committing plagiarism if you copy another person's work and turn it in as your own, even if you should have the permission of that person. This is a serious issue. Violation of the university's policy will result in a grade penalty or failure of the course. This type of violation will stay in your academic record.
4. Assignments must be delivered on time. Penalties will be applied for late or not returned assignments.
5. Students are responsible for taking their own lecture notes. Course outline, journal articles and book chapters will be posted online on Desire2Learn at least one week prior to the due date. All the course readings will be provided as scanned PDF documents, posted on Desire2Learn.
6. The primary communication tool between the instructor and students is Lakehead University's e-mail account. Students are asked to check regularly (including before the class) their LakeheadU e-mail account and Desire2Learn for unforeseen changes to the class. As a general rule, student questions sent 24 hours prior to an assignment or test will not be replied. Students can reasonably expect a response in 1-2 days. Grades are supposed to be returned to the students at the maximum period of two weeks after the assignment is delivered.
7. Students are welcome to schedule online appointments to discuss any topic related to their academic progress or course content.
8. This syllabus is subject to minor changes during the course of the semester.
