Course Description and Objectives:

Anthropology is the study of the biological and cultural complexity of human beings, both past and present. Cultural anthropologists are interested in how societies and cultures function – how people in different locations adapt to their environment, the countless symbolic systems they use to communicate with each other, the political and religious institutions that give meaning to their lives, the modes families are structured, and the forms they make a living. This course introduces students to the anthropological study of cultural diversity, involving ways of comparing and contrasting the structures of social relationships and belief systems that function in different cultural settings. The most important research techniques employed by sociocultural anthropologists will be presented. A special effort will be made to provide a holistic study of humanity and relate sociocultural anthropological notions to contemporary social issues. After we seek to appreciate other cultures on their own terms, we face the dilemma of the degree to which social scientists can develop judgments regarding different cultures and lifeways and at the same time preserve objectivity. Students are expected to think critically and apply concepts as they gain aptitude in the vocabulary of anthropology. The course does not intend to provide a complete account of each society encountered or to respond to every question about how such a society functions. It is understood that a successful student is not that one capable of achieving the minimum grade to get approved. After reading, coming to classes and engaging in the discussions proposed in class, the successful students should be able to:

- a) Expand their horizons, seeing the inter-connectedness of humankind beyond the lens of the exotic other, applying the core concepts in sociocultural anthropology.
- b) Understand, from an introductory level, the relations between the economic, political, religious, cultural, and social systems that contribute to both permanence and transformation in human societies.
- c) Show an understanding of the basics of anthropology and the styles of research and analysis practiced in the discipline.
- d) Describe how personal features such as gender, class and ethnicity influence a person's worldview and how the world perceives the individual.
- e) Learn and apply the key concepts in sociocultural anthropology to critically and respectfully reflect on social problems and cultural differences.

Course Reading:

Kottak, Conrad Phillip

2020 Cultural Anthropology: Appreciating Cultural Diversity, 19th Edition. New York: McGraw Hill.

In-Class Viewing of Films:

A number of videos will be shown throughout the course, followed by a discussion. Be sure to consider how the films relate to course concepts and readings. The content of the movies is also subject to be covered in the exams.

Class Participation – Students are expected to attend all classes, critically read the assigned materials prior to class and participate (in their own way) in class discussions and assignments. Attendance will be verified using an attendance list to be circulated in each class.

Policies and Procedures:

General Course Policies:

1. Avoid disrupting class by arriving late or leaving before the end of the class. Disruptions will result first in a warning and then in a 5% penalty to the student's final grade. If the student's behaviour is disturbing the learning environment of the class, he/she will be asked to leave.
2. It is expected that students will be respectful of their fellow students, their instructor, and cultures and traditions which are not their own.
3. Plagiarism consists of passing off as one's own the ideas, words, writings, etc., that belong to someone else. In accordance with this definition, you are committing plagiarism if you copy the work of another person and turn it in as your own, even if you should have the permission of that person. This is a serious issue. Violation of the university's policy will result in a grade penalty or failure of the course. This type of violation will stay on your academic record.
4. Students will be allowed to take a make-up exam only in the case of documented emergencies. Each situation will be analyzed on a case-by-case basis. If you miss a test for an emergency reason, approach the instructor as fast as possible to discuss your situation. It is at the instructor's discretion to select the format of the make-up exam that will be held in the final week of classes.
5. Students are responsible for taking their own lecture notes. Course outline and class slides will be posted online on Desire2Learn at least one week prior to the due date.
6. The primary communication tool between the instructor and students is Lakehead University's e-mail account. Students are asked to check regularly (including before the class) their LakeheadU e-mail account and Desire2Learn for unforeseen changes to the class due to weather conditions or other reasons. As a general rule, student questions sent 24 hours prior to an assignment or test will not be replied. Grades are supposed to be returned to the students for a maximum period of two weeks after the assignment is delivered.
7. Students are welcome to schedule appointments to discuss any topic related to their academic progress or course content.
8. This syllabus is subject to minor changes during the course of the semester.
