Course Description:

Advanced concepts and knowledge in the field of paleoanthropology are examined in this course through a detailed examination of the enigmatic extinct species Homo floresiensis. Topics will surround the morphological, archaeological, and genetic evidence for human evolution and the implications for understanding human diversity during the past and present.

There are no required textbooks for this course. See the course D2L site (look in MyCourseLinks on the LU website) for assigned weekly readings and resources.

Learning Objectives:

- 1) Increase your ability to read, comprehend, and critically evaluate primary sources of information related to human evolution.
- 2) Increase your ability to present and discuss paleoanthropological topics.
- 3) Improve your writing skills and your ability to cite sources correctly.
- 4) Prepare yourself for graduate school and/or for entering the workforce.
