Pedagogical rationale for this proposal. Why are you submitting this request?:	There are a few minor changes to the program. First of all, the type A, B, C, and D courses breadth requirements are being identified more specifically and notes are added to the elective lines to remind students of the requirements. Secondly the Indigenous Content requirement is being met via Type E courses, as indicated in the note, although two of these are being "recommended" because their subject matter is most topically relevant. Thirdly, in keeping with the new concentrations introduced this year, we are enabling students to fulfill the first and third year inquiry requirements via any of the first year and third year Interdisciplinary Studies courses respectively (INTD 1010, 10aa, 10xx, 10yy, or 10zz and INTD 3010, 30aa, 30xx, 30yy, or 30zz; see 2015-sec-5322 and 2015-sec-5324). A new "Professional Field Exposure" course is being added to the HBASc CRIM and HBASc CRIM College Pathways programs. Introducing this course aligns with the criminology program's restructuring to emphasize a practitioner focus, highlighting career possibilities associated with policing, prosecution and corrections amongst others while also actively preparing students to approach these careers successfully. In addition, the course speaks to the Ministry of Advanced Education and Skills Development emphasis on experiential learning, providing the opportunity for students to learn firsthand from practitioners in a variety of criminal justice related occupations the realities of those professions. The "Professional Field Exposure" class would be a superior alternative to Field Placements for Lakehead Criminology students because it would (1) address liability concerns that make field placement highly challenging, (2) expose students to a much wider variety of career options than placements could provide, and (3) incorporate career preparation development (i.e., skills as well as physical materials) into the experience. This change affects both 1. the regular HBASc (Criminology Major) Program and 2. the HBASc (Criminology Major) College Pathways Program.
