Pedagogical rationale for this proposal. Why are you submitting this request?:	This item is part of a series of courses changes within the MA program. These changes result from a need to streamline the calendar and program, and are in response to logistical issues surrounding the delivery of our thesis, major research project, and course work streams. They also address issues that have arisen while attempting to accommodate leave requests and/or other unexpected interruptions in a student's program of study. They make the program both more transparent and flexible. The majority of the changes are the discontinuation of the half-course pairings currently in the calendar and replacing them with full-year equivalents. A few additional new courses have also been created reflecting the research expertise of faculty and, in a few cases, ensuring our program reflects the new strategic direction of the university and addresses items in both the university and departmental Academic Plans. These changes carry no budgetary issues and do not impact the basic structure of the MA program, nor its specialization in Women's Studies. Replaces HIST 5115/5117.
