Pedagogical rationale for this proposal. Why are you submitting this request?:	Average calculation--The description is changed to reflect the true method by which the major average is calculated by Enrolment Services. Change in requirements to line (c) of the first year--The Psychology Department is remodelling their program and Criminology degrees are minorly affected. In particular, PSYC 2004 – which is an option that students can select from in the CRIM program – is being broken into two .5 FCE courses (PSYC3017 and PSYC3018). These third year transitions do not meet our needs. More generally, Criminology wants to extend the variety of options available to students associated with the degree requirement in second year that this change Psychology change relates to. Specifically, students are currently requested to take 1 FCE from the following courses: POLI2311, POLI2313, POLI2617, SOCI2301, SOCI2221, or PSYC2004. This change is allowing any second year PSYC, POLI, or SOCI courses to be applied to the degree requirements. Change in requirements to line (b) of the third year--This change provides an option for students who do not meet the newly imposed pre-requisite of a 75% average in Criminology for Criminology 4801 (in other words, students who are not positioned to perform well in Criminology 4801) to complete their degree without completing the Honours Research Project course while also still allowing these students to enhance the breadth and

~~depth of their Criminology programming. Both students and instructors will be left more satisfied. Students who are not prepared for the course will be given a reasonable alternative, and instructors will be better positioned to uphold a rigorous standard in Criminology 4801 for those students who wish to take the course and meet the newly imposed pre-requisite standards.~~ This change adds a 0.5 FCE course in Interdisciplinary Studies, INTD 2030 Numbers in Social Context, to the requirements of the HBASc in Criminology transfer agreement. This course is also being added to the non-transfer HBASc in Criminology, and it is designed to improve the numeracy skills of students in the Criminology program.

Degree Type:

Pedagogical rationale for this proposal. Why are you submitting this request?:

~~The purpose of this major modification is to augment the original Criminology transfer pathway such that a special pathway exists between Georgian College's Police Foundation Diploma and Lakehead University's Criminology Degree. The current pathway gives 6 FCEs of transfer credit for a two year diploma from any Police Foundations program in Ontario. This arrangement is not competitive with other transfer pathways, which tend to provide the equivalent of 10 FCEs of credit for this transfer pathway (e.g., students transferring into Ontario Tech University with a two year Police Foundations diploma move directly into third year; Ontario Tech University is a direct competitor to Lakehead both in terms of location and school rankings). Remaining competitive with other universities in the region is critical to continuing to grow Lakehead's enrollments. Further, advancing the educational training of persons interested in a career in law enforcement is a key social initiative in Canada now and for the foreseeable future. It is important that persons who go into the field of policing (as well as related careers, such as corrections, probation, border services, etc.) have been exposed to the intellectual vibrancy that university training offers. Enhancing the viability and ease of transitioning a college diploma into a university degree at Lakehead promotes this outcome. Rationale includes: • We conservatively estimate that the Police Foundations diploma has over 150 students per intake, the next natural step in justice-based education for those remaining in Simcoe Country is the Criminology Degree (Lakehead). • The pathway offers students who have completed a college diploma oriented towards applied training for a field in law enforcement to extend their knowledge base by exploring a broader range of topics oriented towards crime~~

~~and justice in society. While a Police Foundations diploma actually offers students a fairly limited range of career options, coupling this diploma with a university degree in Criminology greatly expands their career options to include: policing, probation, corrections, provincial government employment (e.g., Alcohol and Gaming Commission of Ontario), federal government employment (e.g., Department of Justice), and entrance into professional school (e.g., law school) among other opportunities. • From 2012-2018 approximately 80 students have transferred from Georgian College into a Criminology degree at Lakehead. In 2016 there were 17 transfer students and in 2017 and 2018 that number dropped to 8 and 8 respectively. This number did climb again in 2019 to 15, and current figures indicate that a minimum of 10 transfer students are joining Lakehead's Criminology program in 2020. It is likely that some Georgian students in the region are selecting transfer pathways that offer more transfer credit (such as Ontario Tech University) and, therefore, we are proposing a new pathway that maintains a high level of academic rigor while maximizing transfer credit for students. Specifically, through this proposed pathway, graduates from the Police Foundations diploma at Georgian College will receive two years of transfer credit (10 FCEs) and be able to complete the HBASc Criminology within two years (10 FCEs). This change adds a 0.5 FCE course in Interdisciplinary Studies, INTD 2030 Numbers in Social Context, to the requirements of the HBASc in Criminology transfer agreement with Georgian. This course is also being added to the non-transfer HBASc in Criminology, and it is designed to improve the numeracy skills of students in the Criminology program.~~

Pedagogical rationale for this proposal. Why are you submitting this request?:	The purpose of this major modification is to augment the original Criminology transfer pathway such that a special pathway exists between Centennial College's Police Foundation Diploma and Lakehead University's Criminology Degree. The current pathway gives 6 FCEs of transfer credit for a two year diploma from any Police Foundations program in Ontario. This arrangement is not competitive with other ~~transfer pathways, which tend to provide the equivalent of 10 FCEs of credit for this transfer pathway (e.g., students transferring into Ontario Tech University with a two year Police Foundations diploma move directly into third year; Ontario Tech University is a direct competitor to Lakehead both in terms of location and school rankings). Remaining competitive with other universities in the region is critical to continuing to grow Lakehead's enrollments. Further, advancing the educational training of persons interested in a career in law enforcement is a key social initiative in Canada now and for the foreseeable future. It is important that persons who go into the field of policing (as well as related careers, such as corrections, probation, border services, etc.) have been exposed to the intellectual vibrancy that university training offers. Enhancing the viability and ease of transitioning a college diploma into a university degree at Lakehead promotes this outcome. The pathway offers students who have completed a college diploma oriented towards applied training for a field in law enforcement to extend their knowledge base by exploring a broader range of topics oriented towards crime and justice in society. While a Police Foundations diploma actually offers students a fairly limited range of career options, coupling this diploma with a university degree in Criminology greatly expands their career options to include: policing, probation, corrections, provincial government employment (e.g., Alcohol and Gaming Commission of Ontario), federal government employment (e.g., Department of Justice), and entrance into professional school (e.g., law school) among other opportunities. Please see the program brief for a detailed rationale for creating this new transfer pathway~~

This change adds a 0.5 FCE course in Interdisciplinary Studies, INTD 2030 Numbers in Social Context, to the requirements of the HBASc in Criminology transfer agreement with Centennial College. This course is also being added to the non-transfer HBASc in Criminology, and it is designed to improve the numeracy skills of students in the Criminology program.
