Delivery:	Video Conference (in-person on the Orillia campus)
Date Course Starts:	September 5, 2023
Date Course Ends:	December 4, 2023
Instructor:	Dr. Robert Robson
Prerequisites:	Indigenous Learning 1100 or the permission of the Chair of the Department of Indigenous Learning.
Course Classification:	Type B: Social Sciences
Course Description:	Offers students a detailed understanding of housing and the housing process in Indigenous communities. Beginning with the traditional shelter forms of Indigenous Peoples and moving through to the more contemporary housing structures delivered through, for example, the Rural and Native Housing Program, course content will focus on culturally appropriate shelter forms. From communal living space to shelter orientation, students will consider not only the housing needs of the Indigenous community but also the ways in which those needs have been met.
