Course Description

This course of study addresses 3 basic questions: What is sociology? How do societies work? How is sociology personally relevant? Through readings, lectures, classroom discussions, and audio-visual materials, students will come to understand sociology's unique perspective on human behaviour, its major theoretical paradigms, and its basic research methodologies. Furthermore, students will examine in detail numerous core sociological concepts which may include culture, socialization, social interaction, formal organizations, social stratification, crime and deviance, race and ethnicity, gender and sexuality, aging, social institutions (family, education, medicine, etc.), demography, collective behaviour, social movements, and globalization.

Course Material

Required Textbook: Henslin, James M., Dan Glenday, Norene Pupo, and Ann Duffy. 2014. Sociology: A Down-to-Earth-Approach, 6th Canadian Edition. Pearson Education Canada

It is imperative that you read the required chapters in the Henslin textbook according to the Course Schedule (see below). Please be advised that classroom lectures do not merely repeat the content found in our textbook. Attending lectures is not a substitute for reading the text. Examinations will include numerous questions on content from our main textbook which is not covered in class. You may make comments and ask questions about textbook content in class.

MySocLab: The Henslin textbook is accompanied by an easy-to-use companion website (MySocLab) which serves as a helpful study guide. The website offers chapter summaries, learning objectives, self-help study questions, self-grading quizzes, 'explore & discuss' exercises, guidance and sources for assignment preparations, and more. You are strongly encouraged to work with MySocLab on a regular basis. The link and access code to MySocLab are found in the Henslin textbook.

Lectures: Lectures are an important source of required course content. You should make every effort to attend classes regularly. You are responsible for everything that takes place in class (announcements, lectures, videos, class discussions). Just as attending lectures is not a substitute for reading your main textbook, reading your text is not a substitute for attending classes. The examinations will include numerous questions based on material covered exclusively in class.

Videos: We will view several videos throughout the course of study. Video content will be discussed in class and may be included in course examinations. Because some of these videos may not be available outside of our classes, it is imperative that you attend their classroom showings.

Examinations

There are 4 examinations scheduled throughout the course of study. The Fall and Winter midterm exams will be held during regular class times, and will include approximately 75 multiple-choice questions each. The Fall midterm exam will cover all course material (readings, lectures, videos, class discussions) from the first class to the time of the exam. The Winter midterm exam will cover all course material from the first class in the Winter term to the time of the exam. See the Course Schedule for midterm exam dates. The Mid-year (Xmas) exam will cover all course material from the beginning of the course to the time of the exam, with an emphasis on the material covered since the Fall midterm. The Final exam will cover all course material from the beginning of the Winter term to the time of the exam, with an emphasis on the material covered since the Winter midterm exam. The Mid-year and Final exams will be held in the Saunders Fieldhouse (the Gym). The Mid-year and Final examinations will be 3 hours in duration and may include multiple-choice, short-answer, and essay questions. The dates and times of the Mid-year and Final examinations will be announced at a later date. See the Grading Scheme above for examination weights.

Lakehead University has a very strict policy regarding the failure to write formal examinations at the prescribed time. Please note that make-up examinations will only be offered when missed exams are due to medical and/or compassionate reasons, for which detailed supporting documentation must be submitted. It is your responsibility to familiarize yourself with the University's policy regarding missed examinations. Knowing your obligations in this area may help you avoid serious academic penalty.*

Group Mini-assignments

At different points throughout the course students will be asked to form groups of 3-5 members for the purposes of completing and submitting 6 mini-assignments. Student groups will be formed during class-time. All but one of these assignments will be completed during class. Each mini-assignment will entail a single group meeting during which time group members will engage in a task involving the application of specific course concepts to a particular social issue or aspect of everyday life. Each group will submit a brief report for evaluation. Group mini-assignments carry a maximum total weight of 12% of your final course grade. Make-up assignments will NOT be offered as substitutes for missed mini-assignments. To receive credit for a mini-assignment, you must attend the class in which the mini-assignment is administered.

Winter Term Paper

You are required to prepare and submit a 5-6 page research paper worth 14% of your final course grade. Further details will be released by October 1st. See Course Schedule for deadline.
