

POLI 4911: Politics and Rhetoric (Winter 2024)

Instructor: Marc James

Email: mjames4@lakeheadu.ca

Office: by appointment (Zoom)

Introduction:

We are constantly bombarded with kinds of rhetoric. Whether in advertising, fundraising appeals, sports commentary, or from armchair “experts” on YouTube, it is difficult to escape exaggerated descriptions and questionable claims leading to dubious conclusions of all kinds. Nonetheless, we may associate rhetoric above all with the political realm. Political leaders and those vying for support are expected to pack their speeches with effective rhetoric. Indeed, some of the most famous political speeches of all time are chock full of phrases intended to rouse their target audiences. In this class, we will consider both famous (or infamous) and not as well-known uses of political rhetoric in order to determine and assess their meaning and efficacy. Rhetoric is a tool that can be used for good or bad purposes but might be considered a necessary element of democratic politics and effective political leadership. Therefore, we will also work at understanding the importance of rhetoric and what is involved in unlocking its power in the service of our most cherished purposes.

Highly Recommended Text (other readings/viewing/listening links will be provided):

Bartlett, Robert C. trans. (2019) Aristotle’s Art of Rhetoric University of Chicago Press

Class Methods and Requirements:

While I will occasionally offer a short lecture to introduce some assigned texts or themes, most of our class will consist of discussion of assigned readings/viewing/listening led by students. Each of you will have at least one opportunity to introduce questions for the whole class to consider based on the readings/viewing/listening. In addition, as the term progresses, you will be working toward an opportunity to present your own rhetorical skills in a short speech in one of the final classes.

Academic Honesty:

Academic honesty is expected of all Lakehead University students. It should go without saying that cheating, collusion, and plagiarism will not be tolerated. Students are expected to make themselves fully familiar with Lakehead's policies in this area. Although all these policies will be enforced in full, it is worth emphasizing the following:

PLAGIARISM INVOLVES PRESENTING ANOTHER'S (including AI) WORK, IDEAS, THEORIES, OR INTERPRETATION AS ONE'S OWN.

To avoid plagiarism, always:

- 1) Put quotation marks around any words taken from sources.
- 2) Paraphrase material completely; do not simply rearrange words from a source or change them using a thesaurus, etc.
- 3) Whether it is being quoted or paraphrased in your work, always give accurate and complete citations for all material that comes from another source.
- 4) Avoid borrowing entire arguments or ideas from another writer. Your arguments should be original to you.
