Meeting: Tuesday & Thursday, 2:30pm-4:00pm, RB-2047

Course Description:
This course provides a broad critical introduction to politics and political science. It attempts a broad exploration of the processes and practices that shape political life, the institutional contexts and social framework of political activity, and the role of ideas, institutions and values in influencing political behaviour. The course examines the relationship between power and politics, provides a broad overview of the scope, methods and concerns of political studies, and examines the institutional contexts within which politics is produced. What is power and politics? How is the ‘political’ conceived and organized, and in what ways does this impact social relations? How are governments organised, and what the role of ideas, institutions, culture, on political behaviour? Why do people obey governmental authority and why does government authority collapse? Why does politics turn violent? These are some of the questions that the course attempts to grapple with.

Learning Objectives
This course is designed to provide students with the critical conceptual and analytical tools that enable them to engage with broader questions about the nature, practice and exercise of power. It is also intended to help students develop critical skills for understanding the dynamics of political life, as well as engaging with questions of power and politics they confront on a day to day basis.

By the end of the course, students should:
- Have a broad critical understanding of power and politics;
- Be familiar with the fundamentals of, and key debates in, political science; the major theoretical approaches to the discipline and the scope, concepts, methods that frame analysis of political life;
- Appreciate the role of ideas, institutions and values in politics, the institutional contexts within which governments function and the challenges and uncertainties they face within the context of an ever-changing world.
- Be able to place political events in their proper analytical contexts and understand the power/knowledge regimes that shape discourses of power
- Appreciated the contested nature of politics and the social relations it makes possible.
Course Requirements and Evaluation
The method of instruction will mainly be lectures, with occasional student-led presentations and class discussions. Attendance and participation are crucial for the success of the course. Students are required to regularly attend classes, do the assigned readings before coming to class and take part in class discussions. They are also required to complete two essays and take three exams.

The final grade will be calculated in the following manner:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Component</th>
<th>Weightage</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Attendance &amp; Participation</td>
<td>10%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mid-term Exam (fall)</td>

<td>20%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Winter Term Paper</td>
<td>25%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>End of year Exam</td>
<td>25%</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Attendance & Participation: (worth 10% of the final grade)
Attendance and participation are crucial for the success of the course. All students are required to regularly attend classes, do the assigned readings before coming to class and take part in class discussions. A record of attendance will be kept throughout the duration of the course.

Fall:
(a) Mid-term Exam in fall (worth 20% of the final grade) will be conducted in class on Thursday, October 27, 2016. It is a 30 minutes test on the materials covered in the course up to the time of the exam. It will be a closed book exam consisting of a mixed bag of multiple choice and short answer questions.

(b) Fall term paper (worth 20% of the final grade) to be handed in class on or before Wednesday, December 1. It is a review essay intended to test the grasp of some of the basic concepts in political studies. The essay may be on any of the concepts covered in the course up to the end of the fall term and should competently demonstrate familiarity with the concept chosen and its relevance for politics. It should be 5 (double-spaced) pages long.

[Examination Period for fall is December 9–19. There will be no end of term exam for this course in fall]

Winter:
(a) Winter term paper (worth 25% of final grade) to be handed in class on Thursday, April 6, 2017; that is, the last day of lectures for the course. It is a longer essay, and may be on any topic in political science. It should be between 10 and 12 double-spaced pages (not including the title page and bibliography of works cited).

(b) The final exam (worth 25% of final grade) will be a three hour test conducted at the end of the winter term. It will test students on the topics covered in the course.
It will consist of two parts: Section one will consist of short answer questions which require students to define specific terms and discuss their relevance for politics, and section two will consist of essay type questions that require students to provide longer and detailed essay type answers.

[Note: The examination period is between April 10 and 22. There will be an end of year exam for this course. It is the responsibility of students to check with the Registrar’s office for the exact examination date for this course]

Please Note:
- While it is the responsibility of all students to choose their own topics based on their individual interests, such topics should first be cleared with the instructor.
- All essays should have a title page indicating the title of the essay, the name of the student, the course number, the name of the instructor, and the department.
- In terms of formatting, all essays should be doubled-spaced, Times New Roman 12 point fonts, 1 inch margin and should be handed in on or before the due date in class. Manipulating the margins or font size will be penalised.
- Barring any extenuating circumstance, all written assignments must be submitted on time, otherwise a 2 per cent penalty will apply each day the essay is late.
- For citation and referencing, please use either Harvard or Chicago referencing style for all written work. Failure to follow these instructions will affect your grade.
- The essays will be evaluated based on grasp of the topic, quality of argument, depth of analysis, originality of approach, familiarity with the issues and literature, as well as structure, organisation, grammar, referencing and formatting.

Required Texts

2. Rand Dyck and Christopher G. Anderson (eds.) Studying Politics: An Introduction to Political Science 5e (Toronto: Nelson 2016)

Students with Special Needs
Students with special needs may request accommodations in accordance with the Senate Policy on Students with Disabilities. Such students should at the earliest opportunity advice the Student Accessibility Services (formerly the Learning Assistance Centre) and the instructor of such needs so that appropriate arrangements can be made to accommodate their needs. Those who encounter extenuating circumstances which may interfere with the successful completion of the course should, as soon as possible, discuss these circumstances with the instructor and the Student Accessibility Services.

Lakehead Policy on Academic Dishonesty
As academic integrity is crucial to the pursuit of university education, students are expected to uphold the academic honour code at all times and are advised to familiarise themselves with the university’s policy on academic dishonesty, especially in relation, but not limited, to plagiarism, cheating, impersonation etc. In order to make sure that a degree awarded by Lakehead University is a reflection of the honest efforts and individual academic achievement of each student, Lakehead University treats cases of academic dishonesty very seriously and severely penalises those caught in violation of the university’s policy on academic honesty.

Policy on Electronic Devices

Cell phones are distracting and therefore should be turned off and kept out of sight during lectures. A visible phone will be assumed to be in use. In such a scenario, the instructor may ask the offending student to leave the class. Except where prior permission is sought from the instructor and given, no audio or video recording of lectures is allowed. Where permission is sought and granted, such recordings should be only be for the student’s private use.
