It is important to understand the key theoretical ideas of classical sociology in order to understand the intellectual foundations of the contemporary discipline. In this course, we will encounter those who are regarded to be the most important classical theorists in sociology, by reading original excerpts from some of their most important works. We begin reading the work of a number of intellectual precursors to the tradition, such as Thomas Hobbes, Jean-Jacques Rousseau, Adam Smith, Alexis de Tocqueville, Harriet Martineau, and August Comte. The primary focus of the course will be on the famous “big three” theorists of our tradition, Karl Marx, Max Weber, and Emile Durkheim. We will also be examining some of the selected works of William James, Charlotte Perkins Gilman, Jane Addams, Sigmund Freud, and George Herbert Mead.

GOALS OF THE COURSE

The goals of the course can be broken into four major emphases: (1) to gain a strong familiarity with classical sociological ideas by reading the arguments in their original form; (2) analyze, compare, and critically evaluate abstract theoretical ideas (3) accurately summarize and articulate the key ideas of major sociological theorists, and (4) develop strong writing skills in so doing.

With these goals in mind, you will be evaluated on the following:

(1) Daily Summaries	(40%)
(2) Group Assignments	(20%)
(2) Take Home Test	          (40%)
	Final = (100%)

REQUIRED READINGS

(1) Classical Sociological Theory, 3rd Edition (Edited by Craig Calhoun, Joseph Gerteis, James Moody, Steven Pfaff, and Indermohan Virk). Malden, MA: Wiley-Blackwell Publishing. 2012. All selections on the reading list are in this book unless otherwise mentioned.

(2) There will also be supplementary material not included in the book that can be found on 2 Hour Reserve at the Paterson Library. These will be marked on the reading list appropriately.

A NOTE ON FORMATTING YOUR ESSAYS

The department has adopted the ASA formatting style for referencing and citations. To refer to this, please refer to the departmental website, or refer to the ASA Style Guide, published by the American Sociological Association.

EXPLANATION OF EVALUATIONS:

(1) Daily Summaries (40%)

Each class, you are expected to hand in a concise statement (maximum one page double spaced, at 12 pt font) that summarizes the reading for that day. Try to include all major concepts introduced in the reading, but avoid getting bogged down in too many extraneous details. This is a difficult skill, and one that improves greatly with practice. As such, these summaries serve to: (1) keep you on top of the readings; and (2) practice writing often, with an emphasis on concise, clear prose.

*** There will be no late summaries accepted – they must be handed in at the beginning of class on the day they are to be discussed if they are to count toward your grade.

(2) Group Assignments (20%)

In many classes, I will pose a theoretical question, often after the lecture, for you to work on as a group of 4-5 people. After debating the issues, you will appoint a secretary to write down the argument in point form, and submit your answers. There are no specific dates set aside for these assignments, so it pays to attend regularly, and keep up with the readings, to prepare. If you miss a group assignment, there is no way to make it up, except in the case of a doctor's note or other formal documentation deemed acceptable by me.

(4) Final Test (40%)

The take home test, distributed at the end of the semester, will ask you to compare the theories learned in class and evaluate them in relation to one another, in essay format. Emphasis will be placed on quality of prose as well as the depth of understanding displayed in evaluating the grade. The test should be typed using 12 point times new roman font, double-spaced, accurately referencing sources as necessary.
